ASK Advisor Service

- We are here to help you to learn how to improve your general library and study skills for UC and UCC units.
- We can work with you for 20 minutes and will give you some goals to reach independently. Once you have spent a reasonable amount of time working to achieve these goals on your own, you are able to return for further help.
- In line with the principles of academic integrity we will guide you to proofread and edit your own work.
- We are a team trained to help you across a variety of areas, when you need it, so no appointments are necessary. We are able to refer you on to more specialist services as needs arise.
- While we can provide help with exam preparation strategies, due to the nature of the task, you will need to complete take-home exams independently.
- Content advice as well as feedback on the quality of your work or an indication of your final mark can only be determined by your tutor, lecturer or unit convenor, so we aren’t able to provide these.

Study Skills support can help improve your academic skills but doesn’t guarantee a pass mark for the assessment with which you received help.

Study Skills aims to ensure that all UC students can cultivate the skills and confidence that will lead to study success in an inclusive, friendly, student-driven environment. We build UC students’ skills and facilitate independent learning across a range of programs and connect students to a variety of UC support services where appropriate.
