Professional Networking and Information Evening

The University of Canberra would like to extend an invitation to all interested parties to engage with local professionals, like minded individuals, industry leaders, and members of the University of Canberra Academic staff, at the second Professional Networking and Information Evening of 2010.

Professor Mark Evans, Director of the ANZSOG Institute for Governance at the University of Canberra, and an international leader in public administration practice, will speak about the benefits of undertaking further study for career development and progression in the public sector.

This event provides a forum for individuals, government agencies, and businesses to strengthen partnerships, build channels for a continuing dialogue, and create new opportunities with the University of Canberra and other various stakeholders.
