RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOR SPORT AND EXERCISE (UCRISE)

The University of Canberra Research Institute for Sport and Exercise (UCRISE) is a research and innovation institute established in 2014. Combining six research themes, the institute was created to support the University's sporting aspirations through strategic planning and leadership, the co-ordination of sport-related research projects involving both staff and students, consultancy across the University, and development of external partnerships.

UC HOSPITAL

The University of Canberra Hospital (UCH): Specialist Centre for Rehabilitation, Recovery and Research is the largest purpose-built rehabilitation centre in the ACT and surrounding region, with capacity for 140 inpatient beds, 75-day places and additional outpatient services.

UCH features dedicated therapy spaces, including a hydrotherapy pool, therapeutic gyms, and kitchens to promote independence. There are also outdoor spaces, including a rehabilitation courtyard and recreational areas.

Students studying in the Faculty of Health will have classes in the new state-of-the-art Clinical Education and Research Centre (CERC) – the University's shared teaching and research space at the hospital.

SPORTING COMMONS

Our sporting facilities are being developed on campus to help the University become one of Australia's leading tertiary sports institutions in scholarships and research.

Facilities located within the Sporting Commons include gymnasiums, medical and rehabilitation areas, plunge pools, a sauna, a main oval and skills field, and a purpose-built bocce court for Special Olympics ACT.

The Sporting Commons are benefitting our students, with honours and doctoral students working alongside the Brumbies, the AIS and the University of Canberra Capitals to gain valuable experience while they study.

ROBOTICS LAB

Led by Associate Professor Damith Herath, our Collaborative Robotics Laboratory is the hub of our industry-lead, cutting edge development and research work in the area of robotics.

Established in 2017, what started as a group of interested, like-minded staff and students has now become the home to many enterprising industry partnerships, award-winning research projects, and the genesis of growth in the area of robotics at UC.

Our dedicated team of researchers, HDR candidates, students, and professional staff work on various projects in robotics and human-robot interaction, closely involving our industry partners and the arts, education, and health communities to explore new and innovative concepts.
