About this course

Expand your mind with a degree in political science

Do you want a better understanding of political science but your busy lifestyle makes it hard to attend university in person? Our Bachelor of Political Studies (online) is the answer. Our degree is designed to cultivate your ability to think critically about political systems, processes, and institutions and the related subjects of political power, citizenship, and governance. As a political scientist you will work to understand and influence the outcomes of political processes, apply political theory to governance, and engage in the public arena, and all at your own pace.

Study a Bachelor of Political Studies (online) at UC and you will:

- gain a broad and coherent theoretical and technical knowledge in politics and political analysis
- acquire in-depth knowledge in one or more disciplines such as international politics, American or Australian politics
- develop cognitive, technical and communication skills
- evaluate political situations that helps you develop and implement policies
- generate and communicate solutions to often unpredictable and complex political problems
- customise your study program by incorporating units from our other online programs, or by mixing online self-paced study with study at one of our campus locations.

Career opportunities

- State and federal government
- National and international business
