About this course

Tell engaging stories that matter, in ways that create impact

With a Bachelor of Communication and Media (Journalism) from the University of Canberra, you'll be equipped for success in a media and communications landscape that's changing faster than ever. In this course you will learn by doing, developing your skills and knowledge in a realistic production environment. You will engage with big ideas and the theoretical underpinnings of journalism, and apply them in your work.

From day one of your degree, you'll work hands-on as a student journalist for The Owl and UCFM, and by the final year of study you'll be exercising editorial leadership across the entire course. Along the way, you'll build the editorial and technical competencies required to produce compelling, accurate and trustworthy journalism for contemporary and future audiences. You'll graduate as a confident early career journalist who employs the highest standards of professionalism and ethical practice in your work.

Study a Bachelor of Communication and Media (Journalism) at UC and you will:

- produce compelling and trustworthy multiplatform journalism
- identify and engage contemporary audiences within complex media and information landscapes
- work flexibly, autonomously and collaboratively in deadline-driven editorial production environments
- employ the highest standards of professionalism and ethical practice in your work
- interrogate the evolving role of journalism in societies and its interaction with power.

Work Integrated Learning

During the course, you'll gain 100 hours of real-world industry experience through an internship placement at media organisations such as the ABC, the Canberra Times, WIN, and amplifyCBR. There are also exciting year-round on-air and production opportunities for journalism students at the Faculty of Arts and Design's radio station, UCFM.

Career opportunities

- Reporter
- Producer
- Newsreader
- Podcaster
- Multiplatform content creator
- Social media coordinator
- Online community manager
- Digital campaigner
- Media advisor

Course-specific information

We also offer a range of short and longer term international study and internship opportunities which count as credit towards your degree. If you're interested in pursuing a career in research, we provide a clear pathway to the Master of Communication degree.

Admission requirements

Admission to this course is based on an entrance rank. A rank can be achieved by the following means:

- Year 12 ATAR
- other Australian Qualification
