

Student Name: Samuel Chen

Title: Through the mind's eye of a youthful spirit

Artist Statement:

As young spirits wander down a street, they view the environment differently from others; they view the world with their mind. As small creatures entered within the small cracks in walls and roads, they were caught by the eye of wonder. They were playing in the playground, hiding in books in the library, and invading the city. They see potential in every corner, and their playful mind allows them to open their creative vision and visualise things that can be challenging for us.

I suggest you reflect on the value of youth's perspective, As their creative mind develop, supporting them with positive messages may change their future.

A view of the world through a young children's mind. Small unique creatures creeping out of the cracks of walls, roads playing at different places